

FLOOD

Siokon S. Farm
Oct. 21, 1933.

The Director
Weather Bureau
Manila, P. I.

Sir:

This is to respectfully inform you that on the 16th of this month, there occurred in Siokon, the biggest flood in the history of this place. The Siokon River overflow its banks and the water reached an enormous height, causing much damages to abaca plants, coconuts, and other plants. However, no life was sacrificed. The flood occurred during the day when everybody was expecting for the occurrence.

One whole week raining day and night. The rain began to pour Oct. 14, 1933 at 7.20 p.m. It stopped half day and rained again at 4.30 p.m. From Monday up to Friday the people of Siokon never see the sun. The sky during those days was thickly covered with clouds. Rain, lightning and thunder occurred at intervals.

Note :

All throughout the week the south wind blew everyday.
Moa.

Very respectfully,

(SGD.) M. C. AZCONA
Observer

Copied by J. Gallego
January 3, 1934
from the rear of the rainfall blank form.